COLORFUL INDIAN POW-WOW SHOWS MERGING OF OLD AND NEW

By EARL DYER
Star Staff Writer

MACY, Neb. — Take a potfull of the customs of America's original residents; add several dashes of modern Americana—hot dogs, cotton candy, more tents than teepees, a picnic ground full of cars.

Stir it together in a Pow-Wow grounds ringed with trees on the Missouri River Bluffs about 60 miles north of Omaha. Add with your imagination the beat of the tom-toms, the sound of tribal songs, the chatter and clanging of bells, small and large, and all the colors of the rainbow, employed profusely.

Then, if the mixtures is simmered leisurely, at a pace befitting both the heat of the day and the great age of the ceremonies, you have something approximating the dish served up at the Omaha Indian Tribe's annual Pow-Wow, which closed Sunday night.

90th Pow-Wow

For this their 90th annual Pow-Wow, the Omaha Indians at Macy welcomed back most of the 1,500 tribal members who make the Pow-Wow a reunion, about 200 visiting members of other tribes from half a dozen states and several thousand non-Indian visitors.

The Pow-Wow this year, as for many years now, gave evidence of the peaceful, natural mixing of non-Indian culture with Indian ceremonies. But for the non-Indian guests it remained principally a look at the centuries-old costumes and customs of the original inhabitants of the American Great Plains.

The Pow-Wow grounds was lined with refreshment stands, featuring mostly American "county fair" foods (a few of the Indians lamented the lack of the traditional "fry bread"), and stands selling Indian beadwork and jewelry.

But while the visitor might stop to buy a trinket or two, the center of attraction was just beyond, the Pow-Wow arena, where the mud from intermittent rains was pounded into fine dust each day by hundreds of incassined feet, performing the colorful ceremonial dances as well as the slow, rhythmic "round dances" in which the women of the tribe joined, as well as many of the non-Indian guests.

Lifting Their Feet

From the arena the camp crier had, periodically through the morning, reminded the whole camp by modern loudspeaker but in the flowing Omaha tongue, that from all directions people were "lifting their feet" to travel to the Pow-Wow.

And there in the arena gathered, a few at a time until there were more than 50, the Indian men in full costume, with feathered head-dresses and body ornaments and the brief cloth garments of satins and bright cotton.

In the center of the arena sat the dozen and a half older world-clothed men, beating the two tom-toms and singing the songs of the Omaha and other tribes.

The proceedings were leisurely, the costumed men and the women slowly joining the dancing of each number as the mood took them, until the end of the short songs, when all ended smartly in a jangle of bells.

Host Was Gilpin

The genial host was Alfred W. Gilpin, chief of the Omaha Tribe (but now usually called chairman of the tribal council), whose white shirt, tie and smart slacks were anything but traditional Indian dress. Nor was the loudspeaker he used Indian, but the liquid Omaha language mixed with the English announcements was a pleasant and certainly Indian sound.

Traditional events marked the slow-moving, casual proceedings each afternoon and evening during the four-day Pow-Wow. There were the old songs. If they all sounded much the same, Gilpin reminded, it must be remembered that to Indians who don't speak English, current hit tunes all sound much the same.

General dancing by all present took most of the time, but there were special appearances by members of the many different tribes present—the Winnebago from Wisconsin, the Poncas from Oklahoma, the Iowa from Missouri, the Otoe from Oklahoma and, yes, even the Kickapoo Tribe.

There were reminders of the closeness of feeling among tribe members. In one old custom, gifts of money were given, this time to

Hasidim Rabbi Dies

JERUSALEM, Israel Sector (UPI) — Rabbi Aharon Rokach, leader of the Jewish Hasidic movement has died in Jerusalem. He was 80. Rabbi Rokach was the last survivor of a line of Hasidic rabbis.

Gilpin, who received them with a solemn handshake as a token of affection to him and his family in a time of bereavement (Gilpin's sister had died during the early part of the Pow-Wow).

In a mixture of the old and the new at day's end, the American flag was lowered to the singing of an Omaha song to the soldiers of recent wars, and the flag was then ceremoniously folded into its triangle by two fully-costumed dancers.

Theme of the conference this year was "We Shake Hands," the name of a year-long project launched by the Great Plains Indians to improve Indian and non-Indian relations. Friendly gestures to the non-Indian guests marked much of the proceedings, and the tribe was host Sunday at a barbecue—a whole buffalo which had been cooked in a pit through the night.

Camp will be broken Monday, and the Indians will go back to their homes on the reservation, in nearby towns and in faraway cities. But they'll be back next year, for the fall reunion which with old ceremonies commemorates the end of a summer of successful hunting.

Boston Getting Cranky As Paper Strike Goes On

... Mom, Dad, Kids All Feel It

BOSTON (AP)—No news was bad news Sunday as Boston newspapers failed to publish for the tenth consecutive day after negotiators for some 300 mailers rejected a "final offer" by publishers.

The impact of a sabbath without copies of the Sunday Herald, Sunday Globe and Sunday Advertiser was felt sharply and irritably by greater Boston's 2½ million residents.

Youngsters were deprived of their "funnies." There was no sports section for dad. Mother couldn't scan the society section or peruse department store advertisements. The entire family had to depend on radio and TV newscasts for fragments of local, national and international news.

Gate Closes On Production Switches

In a nutshell Nebraska's soil bank sign up for 1958 wheat production will stress greater stringency.

Restricted wheat production will be coupled with the closing of the escape hatches which up to now have permitted the farmer to supplement his income by increased emphasis on non-basic crops.

County Agriculture Stabilization and Conservation officials are already deep in the details of refiguring soil bank bases under the tighter provisions to be ready for the 1958 sign-up which will run from August 26 to October 4.

The new base will be built on the average of soil bank base crops produced in 1956 and 1957. Any acreage placed on the 1958 reserve will be a reduction below the established base.

The federal program is aiming for more effective control of all soil-depleting crops, not just the basic ones. Past efforts in this region have emphasized reduced production in corn and wheat because of their basic nature. But conversion of cropland into non-basic production, mainly sorghum, has convinced the Department of Agriculture that it is squeezing surpluses out of one category while bulging the reserves in several others.

Sorghum, non basic, and until recently in rather short supply, has become a big crop. Nebraska is expected to produce 35 million bushels of it this year — 3% times as much as it did a year ago. From the producer's view that is bonafide compliance with the redeeming feature of being a make-out from an economic point of view. Crop switching has allowed him to keep his income somewhere in line with his outgo. But from the department's point of view it is a case of jumping from the frying pan into the fire as far as the war against surpluses is concerned.

How these diverging views can be reconciled will be of interest to an estimated 18,000 Nebraskans who have been playing along with the soil bank program in wheat production. It will be of interest to another 45,000 Nebraskans who have been soil bank cooperators in corn.

Bulletin 2391-57 of the U.S. Department of Agriculture gets it down in black and white in stating the two principal changes for 1958. It says:

(1) A limit of $3,000 on the total of 1958 acreage reserve payments will be made to apply to any one producer.

(2) Establishment of a total crop acreage figure for each farm to be based primarily on past production history known as "soil bank base" with the requirement that total harvested acres in 1958 be held below the "base" by the equivalent of the number of acres placed in the soil bank.

The restrictions take on pointed interest at this juncture because their first application will come with the 1958 wheat sign up.

Bergman Denies 'Romance' Rumor About Daughter

ROME, Italy (UPI)—Ingrid Bergman angrily denied reports abroad that she is trying to break up an Italian romance of her daughter Jenny Ann Lindstrom. She also denied such a romance even exists.

"I never heard anything so silly," said the famous stage and screen star who has been showing 18-year-old Jenny Ann the sights of Italy during the last month.

Vague reports here and printed stories abroad had coupled Jenny Ann's name with that of Franco Rossellini, 22, nephew of Miss Bergman's Italian film director husband, Roberto Rossellini. The youth was with Miss Bergman and Jenny Ann during a visit to Capri.

One report abroad said Miss Bergman was rushing Jenny Ann to Denmark to break up the romance.

"Why, that's so silly," said Miss Bergman.

12th In Series Of Nuclear Shots Fired

ATOMIC TEST SITE, Nev. (UPI)—The 12th in the current series of nuclear test weapons being exploded by the Atomic Energy Commission was touched off at 4:30 Sunday morning.

The AEC had to scramble to collect their test personnel who had scattered into the night when it was announced earlier that the shot had been postponed.

Because of weather conditions, the explosion had been called off for the 20th time since July 30, but by midnight wind conditions had improved and it was decided to go ahead. Several hundred men were rounded up throughout the Las Vegas area in a few hours.

The device, dubbed "Shasta," was exploded from atop a 500-foot tower. Its power was described as below normal, which is less than the explosive force of 20,000 tons of TNT. But it was by no means a minor explosion.

Many Los Angeles residents reported hearing the dull boom of the blast and its rumbling shock wave was felt in communities 200 miles from Yucca Flats. AFC officials said only light fallout would be recorded outside the test site because of the light winds and the resultant slow movement of the clouds.

COWBOY-STYLE RESCUE ATTEMPT KILLS RIDER, 17

ST. PAUL, Minn. (UPI)—A young rider lost his life today in an accident involving his runaway horse and a cowboy-style rescue attempt.

Gerry Walther, 17, who works at the ranch, saw Carlson's plight and gave chase on another horse. Walther twirled a rope and threw it, attempting to ring the horse's neck. The loop instead fell around Carlson's neck and he was thrown to the ground when Walther's horse, trained in roping, stopped suddenly to pull the rope taught.

Carlson attempted to get up from the ground but collapsed. Two 15-year-old youths put him in a car and drove to a nearby service station. A customer there, Air Force Capt. Ray W. Freeman of Lincoln, Neb., attempted artificial respiration. The attempt was futile.

Joseph Kleckatsky, Dakota County Coroner, ruled the death accidental. He said Carlson died of a broken neck.

He is survived by a brother, Harry, of Lincoln; two sisters, Mrs. Lizzie Barrett, of Aldersyde, Alberta, Canada, and Mrs. Myrtle Caygill, of Long Beach, California.

CAA WORKS TO SOFTEN JET NOISE

WASHINGTON (UPI)—A government agency took a peek into the future of civil jet aviation and decided it isn't going to be as noisy as you may think.

A report by the Civil Aeronautics Administration (CAA) urged the public not to pre-judge civil jet airliners of the future by the noise which military aircraft make now.

The civilian planes will not use the afterburners that are responsible for the loudest noises made by the military planes. Moreover, the civilian jets will use noise suppressors which military planes don't have.

Costs Plenty

The continuing research in developing an airborne muffler is costing a pretty penny, the CAA said, but it added that the civilian airline operators are "willing to accept economic penalties throughout the life of their jet equipment so that their jet airliners can live in reasonable harmony with the community."

This, apparently, is now minor matter. But four years from now, CAA said, it expects there will be 272 large U.S.-built jet transports in operation over this country, plus however many foreign-built jets are bought by U.S. operators, and plus however many foreign-built jets will be flying in and out across the country.

Iowa Safety Head Pinched For Hit-Run

FORT DODGE, Iowa (UPI)—Frank J. Burns, commissioner of public safety, was arrested here early Sunday by two state patrolmen after they said he drove into two parked cars and left the scenes of both accidents.

Burns, charged with hit-and-run and reckless driving, was ordered to appear in police court Monday before Police Judge Herbert Bennett, an appointee of Burns.

The charges against Burns were signed by two civilians, Jim Strutzenberg and Norman Weimers, both of Fort Dodge.

They told police they were in Strutzenberg's home when they heard a crash. They reached the scene in time to see a car pulling away, they said, after it struck Strutzenberg's parked car.

Police immediately warned that a cut from the 16-inch blade might prove fatal.

The dagger, a kris, has been in the possession of the family for generations, passed down from father to son.

Officers said the roaster was careening sideways crazily after it burst through a roadblock and skidded over a patch of loose gravel at a curve. The car catapulted twice into the air as it nosed over islands in a traffic intersection, leaving a trail of twisted parts.

It is very bad luck to steal one of them," the owner said. He added that the dagger is considered sacred and capable of warding off evil spirits from the rightful owner's family.

Each year, the kris is supposed to be sent to a Hindu monk who "bathes" the blade in a solution made from poisonous herbs, roots and sulphur. However, the last "bath" the missing dagger received was three years ago when the Indonesian official arrived here.

One Still Critical, One Good After Crash Of Plane

KEARNEY, Neb. (UPI)—Three persons drowned Sunday in the Calumet River when the powerful backwash from a 525-foot ore carrier tossed their small boat into the side of a lake steamer. The 14-foot boat, equipped with an outboard motor, capsized.

The drowned were identified as Mrs. Florence Struthers, 30; Bert Hasen, 33, and his wife, Jeanette, 31. Mrs. Struthers' husband John, 31, and Nicholas Benda, 25, owner and driver of the craft, were rescued.

Divers searched the rain-swept river for the bodies.

The Coast Guard said the accident occurred when the 14-foot pleasure craft moved close to the stern of the 525-foot Harvester, a 7,188-ton vessel owned by the International Harvester Co. The backwash dumped the small boat, powered by an outboard motor, after smashing it into the side of the 532-foot steamer, James C. Wallace.

Struthers said he was pulled under the surface of the 30-foot deep river by the strong undertow of the propellers and was being dragged steadily toward them until they were turned off.

With three companions, Robert H. Carlson of West St. Paul had gone to the RX Ranch near here to ride saddle horses. When Carlson, 17, attempted to mount the steed, the animal bolted and ran.

Gerry Walther, 17, who works at the ranch, saw Carlson's plight and gave chase on another horse. Walther twirled a rope and threw it, attempting to ring the horse's neck. Nebraska City Landmark Now Storage Space

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb. (UPI)—One of Nebraska City's oldest landmarks is being converted into storage space.

The cave—18 feet wide, 18 feet high and 100 feet long—has had numerous uses since its construction.

It once served as a storage space for beer, later for fruit and vegetables. At one time during the depression of the 1930s, a man tried to make it into a nightclub, but funds ran out.

Costs Plenty

The continuing research in developing an airborne muffler is costing a pretty penny, the CAA said, but it added that the civilian airline operators are "willing to accept economic penalties throughout the life of their jet equipment so that their jet airliners can live in reasonable harmony with the community."

This, apparently, is now minor matter. But four years from now, CAA said, it expects there will be 272 large U.S.-built jet transports in operation over this country, plus however many foreign-built jets are bought by U.S. operators, and plus however many foreign-built jets will be flying in and out across the country.

The typhoon, gaining force and speed as it churned through the Pacific ocean and the East China Sea, was moving north at 15 miles an hour with center winds of 180 miles an hour and gusts up to 230.

Air force weathermen said the typhoon would hit Okinawa with gusts of 65 miles an hour or more.

Stories concerning the hamburgers and hot dogs served at Buckingham Palace to members of the American and English Bar Association were "misleading," according to Lincolnite Mrs. Dan Stewart.

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart returned to Lincoln Sunday afternoon after spending several weeks abroad, a trip which included attending the joint American-English Bar meeting in London and visits to several countries on the continent.

Bar Association members were entertained by the English royal family at a Buckingham Palace lawn party at which the much-publicized hot dogs and hamburgers were served.

Mrs. Stewart said the hamburgers, which the English called "Wimpy," were bite-size, and the hot dogs "no larger than a peanut," were hardly recognizable as compared with their American counterpart.

In addition to this, the guests had small sandwiches, tea, cakes, large cakes, ice cream and cool drinks.

Mrs. Stewart described the party as the "highspot" of their trip, and commented that Queen Elizabeth was "lovely, gracious and every inch a queen."

The Lincoln woman said the English were "wonderful hosts" with many activities planned for the visiting Americans.

After leaving England, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart traveled to Holland where they visited Amsterdam, then to Belgium for a stop in Brussels.

From there the Lincolnes went to Cologne, Heidelberg and Frankfurt, Germany, then to Lucerne and Interlachen, Switzerland, and from there to Paris, their last stop in Europe before flying to New York last Thursday.

Mrs. Stewart described it as a "wonderful trip" with lots of interesting experiences and beautiful scenery.

British Confer, Hope To Free Held Property

CAIRO, Egypt (UPI)—A two-man British mission held a second conference with Egyptian officials on sequestered British property in Egypt.

On the British side were Frederick Milner, British treasury representative in the Middle East, and R. I. Hallows, of the Bank of England.

The Egyptians were sequestered general Moussa Arafa and Dr. Abdel Latif Sh

Quite Well, Thank You

If early week showers left anything wanting week end downpours completed the welcome and pleasant picture for central and eastern Nebraska.

Everyone is deeply thankful. An extended forecast promises cool weather. The moisture that is now in the ground promises a abundant harvest—even better than had been expected. The timely rains also prepared the soil for fall wheat planting, a task only a fortnight away. Nebraska can now expect an admirable start toward 1958 production.

It is true that prices should be better and that the planners of the farm program should be more understanding. But there are other factors in addition to a friendly and generous Mother Nature with her rain clouds.

The state banking director brightened up the week by reporting that the Nebraska state banks increased their deposits nearly $5 million between June, 1956, and June, 1957.

Retail sales are running 1.5 per cent ahead of last year.

It is true that a factual reporter can interview neglected alleys, the city dump and skid row and bring forth a pessimistic report of his community or he can eschew the darker side and make an Elysian field of his town by looking at the more pleasing aspects. But currently dump it all together in Nebraska—the good and the disappointing—and it is mighty hard to be a pessimist.

We Fight So Hard

Elsewhere on this page is a letter bearing the signature of Mrs. J. We think it is a good letter. It was written in behalf of some of the trees in Pioneers Park. They are threatened with the repulsive, ugly bag worm. They are also understandably the victim of neglect because there are no park funds to spray them, nor revenue to see that they are given attention throughout the growing season.

This happens to be the third telephone call and letter calling attention to Lincoln trees in a week's time. A prominent physician and surgeon spoke of the trees in the parks just before the good rains of mid-week. He and his wife were disturbed by what they had seen.

We have too many agencies in Lincoln city government. For example we have the Park

Advisory Board, which has no money on which to operate and no authority to do anything that seems to be needed to be done. It can take note of developments and report back to the mayor and the members of the Council and that is as far as it can go.

The mayor and the members of Council have problems of their own. They take the final action but that does not lighten their financial problems in providing funds for either permanent park developments or for maintenance and care of present park facilities. All they can do is to wish they had unlimited wealth to spend and were in a position to open up a war unto the death against this ugly little bag worm and other insects equally repellent. But if possible the city should make every effort in its power to tend to its trees. They do not grow overnight.

Where The River Flows Swiftly

We never come across the name of Brewster applied to a Nebraska town but that it opens a beckoning vista of a very wonderful region. The news column Saturday carried this paragraph, part of a story of the death of a pioneer Nebraska woman:

"Mrs. Laura May Fletcher, 80, who had lived in Brewster since she was a girl, died Saturday in a Grand Island hospital."

We did not know Mrs. Fletcher who lived to the ripe old age of four score years. We do know that she must have had a very beautiful and a very happy life. There is something about that North Loup region as the river tumbles from out of the hills and flows down the flats which Brewster is a part.

It was 25, or possibly 30 years that on a late

Of Men And Things

On the west coast recently the Los Angeles Times carried a report that one of the hospitals under the Veterans' Administration would be closed. It was a 630-bed hospital. And it also was an eye-opener to watch the California delegation go into action. There was a meeting of the full delegation of 30 members of the House and of course the two members of the Senate. They were about evenly divided between Republicans and Democrats. Both Senators were Republicans. If we remember right a majority of the House delegation of 30 proudly wore a Republican label.

One thing became clear at the start. The California delegation facing the closing of a hospital did not care a rap whether those voicing protests belonged to the Grand Old Party or to the Democrats. They were against the closing. Five times in ten days the reader found that California delegation up on its toes, fighting with every weapon it had, to retain agencies, facilities, or resources that provided employment, income and helped to swell California's pocketbook. There may be those in Nebraska who look upon that attitude as venal. We see it in an entirely different light. If there is anything at all to the Eisenhower doctrine of tearing down big government and transferring responsibility to the states, then it does not take a great deal of knowledge or thought to realize that each state will scramble for what it's got and fight like a primitive, infurated savage to retain what it already has. Our good friends who are too proud to fight in this scramble of the national grab bag are apt to wind up with their pants missing and their bare shoulders exposed to the sun.

One of the Lincoln newspapers noted Saturday night that consideration would be given by the Navy to closing plane activities here in Lincoln while opening, or in the more technical sense, reactivating a base in Houston, Tex. Texas has one whale of a lot of military installations. It is a big, wealthy, populous state, with an imposing delegation in Congress, and with a very handsome idea about its own importance. We do not mean to say Texas is throwing her weight around every hour of the day to pick off the plums but that Texas Congressional delegation headed by Speaker Sam Rayburn and Senate Chief Lyndon Johnson knows its way around.

What we were about to say is that common sense and ordinary energy on the part of the Congressional delegation representing Nebraska, Texas or any other of the 48 states ought to be able to get up out of its chair in its air-conditioned office, walk over to the particular military unit in charge of location or relocation of installations long enough to find out what is going on. And if it cannot find out then that Congressional delegation from Nebraska ought to have a sufficient sense of responsibility to the people it is supposed to represent to simply announce in the news columns that it made every effort with the Pentagon or with any other office involved and simply did not have any luck. It might be a humiliating confession to be called upon to make but at least there is a certain measure of honor in the good old try however it may come out—failure or success. We've had some perfectly magnificent representatives in Congress from Nebraska and we have had some who in the judgment of this writer are not worth their salt. They toil not but they spin and how!

Glad For Them

The law was overthrown but no one regrets it in the case of the Japanese mother, Mrs. Aiko Azuma Taylor.

American sympathy was attracted some time ago by the unusual story of Aiko. She was the second Mrs. Taylor. The first one after a reasonably long and seemingly satisfactory life with her husband, expected to follow him to Japan after he had received an assignment there. Instead he preceeded her and then from that distance wrote that he had obtained a quickie divorce en route. He was marrying a Japanese girl. He did and they had two children. Then he contracted a lung cancer. When he realized he would soon die he wrote to his first wife and asked her to rear the children of his second wife in order that they might have American advantages. She consented and in due time received the children. The story would have been unusual enough had it ended there. But it went further. Aiko, at her home in Okinawa, found life unbearable without her two children. That is when the first Mrs. Taylor performed her second act of great nobility. She decided to effect the reunion. At first the State Department said, no. It was against the law. But the first Mrs. Taylor did not quit trying. Finally the department relented. Now all four are together permanently in America, the first Mrs. Taylor, the second Mrs. Taylor and the latter's two children.

Forty young Americans who attended the Moscow youth conference will go to China and look around. Meantime that many or more dependable American news men ready by millions of Americans can't get the okay of Secretary of State Dulles. They and their papers wish to do objective reporting in Red China. It is a commentary on the thinking of this age in which we live.

New Found Zeal In Justice Department

WASHINGTON — It should be noted that one group working ardently to delay the civil rights bill until next year in order to pass a tougher bill is the Justice Department.

To keep the record straight, here is how the Justice Department has puffed regarding civil rights in the past:

Pussyfoot No. 1 — On July 27, 1955, exactly two years ago, Senator Tom Hennings, Missouri Democrat, chairman of the Constitutional Rights Committee and a member of the Judiciary Committee, wrote the Justice Department requesting its views on Senate Bill 904 to strengthen the laws relating to convict labor, peonage, slavery, and involuntary servitude.

This seemed rather non-controversial. Few Americans want to continue slavery in this modern day and age. Nevertheless, the Justice Department waited three months, then timidly informed Senator Hennings April 19, 1955, that it "would have no objection to the enactment of this legislation." The Justice Department did not come out emphatically for it. It did not say that strengthening the laws against peonage, slavery, and involuntary servitude was a wholesome thing. It merely had "no objection."

In other words, the civil rights bill which the Justice Department now wants strengthened and held over until next year was something upon which it refused to take a stand two years ago.

Pussyfoot No. 2 — On March 22, 1955, more than two years ago, Senator Hennings also wrote the Justice Department asking for its opinion on Senate Bill 907, an omnibus bill in which was combined many provisions of the present civil rights bill protecting the voting rights of Negroes.

Two-and-a-half years have now passed, and the Justice Department has not yet had the courtesy to reply.

Pussyfoot No. 3 — On March 22, 1955, Senator Hennings also asked Justice Department for its opinion on Senate Bill 907, an omnibus bill in which was combined many provisions of the present civil rights bill protecting the voting rights of Negroes.

Five months passed, during which the Justice Department struggled to make up its mind. Then it decided it couldn't make up its mind. On September 8, 1955, it replied: "Whether or not this measure should be enacted con-

VACATION PLAN

Auto Tour Of Russia Not 'Quite Practical'

BY CHARLES H. KLENSCH

LONDON — The first British motorists to tour Russia under the Kremlin's new drive-it-yourself vacation plan have a word of advice for anyone thinking of doing so in their tire tracks — "Don't."

Among the half-dozen cars to cross the Iron Curtain with western tourists were scout cars from Britain's two auto organizations, the Royal Automobile Club (RAC) and the Automobile Assn. (AA).

The RAC advance man, Major Harry Stanley, reports with stiff-lipped British reserve that a Soviet tour for the average British Sunday driver still isn't "quite practical."

He found that the Intourist-advertised amenities — when he did find them — "exist only in a rudimentary form."

And the Intourist "guide-interpreter" who is assigned to each car, whatever his language abilities, was almost hopeless as a guide since he had never been over the route before.

The trip from Brest to Moscow and down to Yalta does offer one thrill for the British motorist, however. He can tool along the well-surfaced main highways at top speed for thousands of miles, something he can't do at home on Britain's antiquated roads.

BOB CONSIDINE

Baruch Chronicles 'Forgotten' Career

BARTHOLD BERNARD BARUCH called on his mother, who lived nearby. The phone calls followed him there, but again he wouldn't answer.

Sundown came at long last and Baruch called his friend Harry Content. Amalgamated had opened at 100 and dropped to 97 before noon. Had he been on the floor he would have sold at that point and taken a modest little profit. But by closing time, he learned, it was down to 93 1/4. He let it go to 60 before he actually sold, and made $700,000.

As a young man (whose hero was Bob Fitzsimmons and whose one-time ambition was to be heavyweight champion) Baruch wheeled and dealed with such titans as J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller, Thomas Fortune Ryan, Henry H. Rogers, Edward Harriman, the Guggenheims, "Bet a Million" Gates, and Diamond Jim Brady. He says this of that much caricatured latter gentleman:

"I never see a flashy dresser today without thinking how pallid his appearance would be beside Diamond Jim Brady. Jim loved to starle people and to be talked about. He never would use old money. If crumpled or dirty money came his way he sent it to the bank for crisp new bills. The day of his big kill was to be Monday, September 22. On the 21st, his mother called him. 'Son,' she said, 'you know Yom Kippur is coming!'"

Baruch's heart sank, but he held true to his faith. All that Monday his phone at Elberon, N.J. rang shrilly, but he wouldn't touch it — because to do so would have profaned the day of abstinence. Each call must have suggested to him that his beans had gone wild. He always wore formal clothes, and generally he had a beautiful woman on his arm. In the afternoon he and Mrs.

BILL DOBLER At City Hall

The Law On Urban Renewal

At a recent meeting of the City Planning Commission, a resident of one of the more crowded and rundown areas of the city made a plea for relief of what he said was a critical housing shortage.

The Commission recognized the problem as a great opportunity for the use of urban renewal. But what the commission failed to do was take any action toward implementing recently enacted state law permitting establishment, with a vote of the people, of an urban renewal authority.

Great pains were taken by many people interested in better living standards for all to get this bill through the Legislature. Now, it seems as though little if anything is being done with the authorization which was so essential to an urban renewal program.

Steps should be taken as soon as possible to get things going on this community face-lifting program. Even with spirited backing, it will take a long time to get urban renewal into operation. First of all, there must be an election on the matter of setting up an urban renewal authority.

There is a host of planning which must be done and all work must fit in with federal regulations. In this connection, there will probably be changes recommended by the government in the city's minimum standards housing ordinance. Such changes will be time-consuming things to realize as will just about all other phases of the program.

BRIDAL CHORUS IS MID-AUGUST THEME SONG

MRS. GEOFFREY FRIED

MRS. CARROLL REINERT

MRS. JAMES TOMASEK

MRS. RICHARD ASH BEECHNER

MRS. FRANK HEMPHILL

McKAY-FRIED

The chancel of the Methodist Church at Wimberly, S. D., was appointed with all-white blossoms on Saturday afternoon, Aug. 17, for the wedding of Miss Dixie McKay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dick McKay of Wimberly, and Geoffrey Fried, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Fried of Butte. In the presence of 200 guests, the Rev. Mr. Wagar read the lines of the service.

Mrs. Gary Leach of Lincoln, as the matron of honor, and the bridesmaids, Miss Susan Stone, Weeping Water, and Miss Marlene Engel, Madison, Wis., wore identically-styled sheath frocks of nubbed silk in periwinkle blue accented by full overskirts of sheer nylon lace. They carried fans fashioned of blue-tinted carnations. Miss Judy McKay and Miss Jayne McKay of Wimberly attended their sister as flower girls.

Serving Mr. Fried as best man was Gary Leach of Lincoln, and seating the guests were Harry Knust of Omaha, and Fred Dunn of Butte.

Imported lace re-embroidered with iridescent sequins detailed the bride's gown of white Dupioni silk. Appliques of the lace bordered the V neckline of the sculptured bodice, which was designed with long, fitted sleeves, and the lace motif was repeated in the trim of the very full skirt. Her veil of silk illusion was held by a shell cap of jeweled lace, and she carried a white prayer book ornamented with a single white orchid.

Mr. and Mrs. Fried will make their home at 1910 So. 26th. Both are former students at the University of Nebraska where the bride is a member of Alpha Xi Delta and Mr. Fried is a member of Pi Kappa Phi.

MASTERS-REINERT

Lavender chrysanthemums, arranged against huckleberry greenery, appointed the chancel of the Syracuse Methodist Church for the wedding on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 18, of Miss Margaret Ann Masters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl F. Masters of Syracuse, and Carroll Reinert, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob R. Weeves of Craig.

The Rev. J. C. Lawson of Lincoln solemnized the 3:30 o'clock ceremony.

Miss Judith Masters, wearing a deep tone of lavender taffeta, was her sister's maid of honor; and Miss Kay Masters, also a sister of the bride, wore pale lavender. The costumes were designed in the princess mode, with flaring, ballerina skirts. Each carried a bouquet of pink roses.

Lee Rockell of Brainard served Mr. Reinert as best man, and seating the guests were Clayton Struthers of Lincoln; Frank Masters and James Masters.

For her wedding the bride chose a gown of tulle and Chantilly lace over satin. Lace fashions the long-sleeved bodice, designed with a portrait neckline, and was repeated to create side panniers on the voluminous tulip skirt, and to form a back panel that extended into a chapel train. A crown of lace, dotted with pearls, held in place her elbow-length veil, and she carried a small nosegay of pale pink roses on a white Bible.

Mr. Reinert and his bride will reside in Lincoln.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska, where she is a member of Zeta Tau Alpha sorority, and will be a member of the Lincoln public schools faculty this year. Mr. Reinert was graduated from the University of Nebraska College of Pharmacy, and now is attending the University of Nebraska graduate school.

SIGLER-TOMASEK

Two hundred invitations were issued for the wedding of Miss Gail Sigler, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dewey M. Sigler of Osceola, and the Rev. James Tomasek Jr., of St. Louis, Mo., son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Schmidt of Lincoln, which took place on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 18, at the Methodist Church in Osceola.

The mint green crystalate frocks of the attendants, Mrs. DeVon Johnson, her sister's matron of honor; and Mrs. Sidney Sigler, sister-in-law of the bride, the bridesmatron, were styled identically in the princess mode. The bodices had portrait necklines contoured with embroidered crystalate, and were snugly fitted above the bouffant ballerina skirts.

Gerald Tomasek served his brother as best man, and Wesley J. Jenksy of Long Beach, Calif., was the groomsman. Seating the guests were James Copp of Grand Island; James H. Walton of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Jack Parris of Lincoln.

The bride chose for her wedding a gown of white crystalate frosted with embroidery. The fitted bodice, designed with a square neckline and brief sleeves, was smoothly molded above the extremely bouffant skirt. A pearl-edged calot of lace held to the head her elbow-length veil, and she carried a bouquet of yellow roses.

The bride is a graduate of the University of Nebraska from where she also received her Master's Degree. She is a member of Sigma Kappa sorority, Masquers, and Purple Masque.

The Rev. Tomasek was graduated from the University of Nebraska, where he is a member of Masquers and Purple Masque. The Rev. Tomasek was graduated from the Eden Theological Seminary, Webster Groves, Mo.

DILL-BEECHNER

For the wedding of Miss Barbara Nelle Dill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl P. Dill of Belvidere and Richard Ash Beechner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Beechner of Lincoln, which took place on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 18, the chancel of the Congregational Church in Belvidere was appointed with arrangements of blue and white daisies.

Frocked in powder blue embroidered cotton Miss Neola Clark of Norfolk was the maid of honor and only attendant. Her flowers were white daisies in a colonial bouquet. Miss Gay Wilson of Norfolk, and Miss Barbara Beechner of Lincoln, sister of the bridegroom, lighted the candles.

William Osterberg of Omaha served Mr. Beechner as best man, and seating the guests were Robert Dill, and Duane Messman of Bruning.

A gown of imported embroidered organdy was chosen by the bride for her wedding. Embroidery frosted the elongated, slender bodice and also fashioned the shoulder-wide Sabrina neckline and the brief sleeves and the embroidery motif was repeated in waist-to-hem panels, on the voluminous, floor-length skirt. A shell hat of re-embroidered lace held to the head her veil of illusion and she carried a cascade bouquet of Marguerite daisies.

Mrs. Beechner is a graduate of the University of Nebraska School of Nursing in Omaha. Mr. Beechner was graduated from the University of Nebraska.

frock tones completed their ensembles, and they carried nose-gays of deep pink carnations and stephanotis. Miss Sharon Johnson of Minneapolis was the flower girl, and the ringbearer was Michael Boneke, Norfolk.

Jim Hupfer of Toledo, O., served Mr. Hemphill as best man, and seating the guests were Jim Logback, Clay Center, Kan., Paul Hemphill, brother of the bridegroom, Mike Shugrue and Jim McGurk, all of Lincoln.

White Italian silk appliqued with Rosepoint lace was chosen by the bride for her wedding gown. Lace smoothed over silk formed the elongated bodice which was designed with long, fitted sleeves and a scalloped, portrait neckline, and the lace extended below the slim waist into a plumb motif over the very full skirt of silk which ended in a long train. Her silk illusion veil was held to the head by a shell cap of pearl-embroidered lace.

A former student at the University of Nebraska, the bride is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta. Mr. Hemphill, who is a member of Phi Kappa Psi, is completing his studies at the University of Nebraska.

Hinman of Omaha, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Hinman of Newnan Grove, was solemnized by the Rev. R. E. Hammer of Stromsburg. Mrs. Carl Berg, organist, played the wedding music and also accompanied Mrs. Richard Johnson, the vocal soloist.

Silk organza in the royal blue shade was chosen for the costumes of the attendants including Mrs. Carroll Macander of Iowa City, the matron of honor; and bridesmaids Miss Dixie Lee Peterson of Long Beach, Calif., and Miss Carla Lee Buchholz of Storm Lake, Ia. Shirring accented the slender waistlines of the fitted bodices, designed with criss-cross necklines, and wide bustle bows gave emphasis to the sheath silhouette of the skirts. Each carried a colonial bouquet of blue and white carnations. The candles were lighted by Miss Donna Mentink and Miss Linda Mentink, and Mary Ann Hinman was the flower girl. Randy Perry was the soloist.

Both organists in the royal blue shade was chosen for the costumes of the attendants including

... Gavins Point Dam Dedication Speaker Asserts

YANKTON, S. D. (AP)—Support of water resources policy legislation now pending in Congress "will go far toward the sound development of your resources in the Missouri Basin..." Assistant Secretary of the Army Dewey Short declared Sunday.

Short, long-time Congressman from Missouri, was one of the principal speakers at dedication ceremonies for Gavins Point Dam, newest of the main stem Missouri River dams and reservoir projects.

An estimated 10,000 persons were on hand for the dedication, which found Short winding up the formal ceremonies by breaking a bottle of water from Lewis and Clark Lake, behind the dam, on the spillway bridge.

York Residents Will Pay Lower Levy, 57.78 Mills

Lincoln Star Special

YORK, Neb.—An increase in assessed valuations in York County, plus reductions in the county budget and the erasing of a 1.12 bond levy tax in the School District of York, are going to mean a slightly lower tax rate for York residents in 1957.

This year they will be paying $57.78 in taxes on each $1,000 assessed valuation as compared to $58.11 in 1956. Those figures include the state tax and hospital levies, the county tax of 4.04 down from 4.20 in 1956; city tax of 18.51 and school district tax of 25.64, up from 25.13 in 1956.

Bradshaw residents will be paying $2.95 as compared to 49.72 in 1956. The remaining four villages in York County, Benedict, Lushon, Thayer and Waco show a lower levy. Benedict dropped to 42.54 from 43.36; Lushon 25.15 from 25.50; Thayer 38.97 from 40.73 and Waco 45.13 from 48.44.

Valuation Up

The overall assessed valuation in York County is up $90,045, largely due to irrigation wells. Total assessed valuation in York County for 1957 is $38,140,455.

Henderson residents will be paying $64.10 on each $1,000 assessed valuation, highest in the county. This figure represents an increase of $5.26 over 1956. The village tax leaped from $14.41 to $21.53 for 1957 for each $1,000 assessed valuation.

The school district of Henderson will take 23.39 down slightly from the 23.57 in 1956, and the bond tax in the district has

State Fair Races Enter 2nd Week

The second week of the Nebraska State Fair horse race meeting will get underway today with a pair of claiming races carrying $900 purses featuring the action.

The eighth and ninth races on today's card will have the big purses.

Saturday's total parimutuel handle of $276,354—a record high for a first Saturday at the Fairgrounds—boosted the first week handle to over the million mark at $1,013,600. The meeting has nine more racing days left and chances for a new high in total wagering are still possible. The record was set in 1955 at $2,965,028 over a 17-day meeting. The 1956 handle for 15 days was $2,896,681.

Jockey Boyd Morris holds a commanding lead in the race for leading rider honors. Morris, who has been the top jockey at all Nebraska meetings this season, has 13 wins and has finished in the money 27 times in 46 rides.

Cal McLish Sends A's Into Cellar

KANSAS CITY (P) — Cal McLish held Kansas City to six hits while his teammates clobbered four Kansas City pitchers for 11 safeties Sunday as the Cleveland Indians pushed the Athletics back to the cellar, 9-2.

McLish, who got the call to start after Ray Narleski turned up with a sore shoulder, had a four-hitter going into the last of the ninth. After two outs, Kansas City's Woody Held and Hal Smith hit singles, but McLish retired Hec Lopez on a pop fly short, ending the game. The victory was McLish's sixth against five defeats.

Although Cleveland got all its four off four pitchers, Kansas City used five. Wally Burnette pitched the seventh inning without allowing a man to reach base but gave to a pinch-hitter.

Russ Nowhere Near Us In A-Energy—Strauss

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Lewis L. Strauss of the Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) says he could be wrong but he's convinced the Russians aren't "anywhere near the position that we are in the development of atomic energy."

Strauss told a house appropriations subcommittee, in secret testimony made public Sunday, that the Soviets now are putting a lot of emphasis on large and expensive atomic accelerators—atom-smashing machines.

Even in this field, he said, "we think from what we have been able to learn about them that they are copies and large copies of our most advanced work."

Atomic accelerators, such as the cyclotron, are used primarily for research aimed at learning more about the inner structure of the atom.

Would Show Off

Appraising the broader field of atomic power, the AEC chairman said he thought that if the Russians were anywhere near the United States in A-power "they would demonstrate it for the propaganda benefit."

He went on to recall that Russia showed no hesitation in exhibiting at the 1955 international atomic conference at Geneva a reactor that was "a Model T Ford by comparison" with the one then in use on the U.S. submarine Nautilus.

Strauss also briefed the subcommittee, in his July 10 appearance, on AEC efforts to produce "clean" atomic weapons. But his published testimony merely paralleled statements made earlier by President Eisenhower. The hearing transcript indicated much of Strauss' testimony on the subject was off the record and not made public.

As Eisenhower told a June 26 news conference, Strauss said weapons completely free of dangerous radioactive fallout will probably be developed in four or five years. Right now, he said, AEC scientists have produced "the prototypes of weapons in which the radioactive fallout is reduced as against previous weapons by as much as 96 per cent."

Just Squirrels?

Rep. Evans (D-Tenn.), after hearing this, suggested that now "you drop a bomb and kill a squirrel and not the leaves around it."

"I think it will kill several squirrels," Strauss said, "but you are quite right; the effect is confined to a target rather than to a large indiscriminate area downwind from the target."

Discussing the hazards of fallout, about which scientists disagree, Strauss said the luminous dial of a wrist watch delivers more radiation "than all that received from the accumulated fallout to date."

Referring to protests against continuation of atomic testing, Strauss said:

"A campaign, if one is inclined to campaign, against luminous wrist watch dials would with the above assumption be more beneficial to humanity."

He did not elaborate.

Maharajah Of Morvi, Race Horse Owner, Dies

ASCOT, England (AP) — The Maharajah of Morvi, who once owned the largest string of race horses in India, has died at his English home near here. He was 39.

Ill health in the last few years forced the Maharajah to give up the horses after they had won several races in England.

The Maharajah's father ruled Morvi, in western India, when it was a princely state. But in 1948, Morvi merged with the state of Saurashtra and the father abdicated. The title of Maharajah went to the son. The father died in Bombay three months ago.

Congress' Adjournment Fever Is Raging

WASHINGTON (P) — Adjournment fever, aggravated by the desire to travel, was spreading through Congress Sunday.

Senate and House leaders have hopefully set next Saturday, Aug. 24, as a tentative date for ending the present session which began last January, but they won't be at all surprised if it runs through the following week.

They are determined to get out of town before Labor Day unless some new obstacle arises.

Would Upset Plans

Many members already have plans which would be rudely upset if the session continues into September. These plans include plane and ship reservations for trips abroad. This being a non-election year, the number of junkets, or official inspection trips, is high.

The congressional work docket is such that it could be disposed of quickly, once the controversy over a Civil Rights Bill is settled.

This bill, originally passed by the House and then amended by the Senate to provide for jury trials in criminal contempt of court cases, is now back in the house.

Other than the Civil Rights bill, the House still must consider an appropriation for the Atomic Energy Commission.

The Senate has on its calendar House-approved bills to raise the pay of civil service employees and postal workers. It is expected to send both these measures to the President, whose congressional leaders predict a veto.

Postal Rate Hike Unlikely

Most likely to be shunted aside until next year is another House-approved bill to raise postal rates. This is pending in the Senate Post Office Committee.

The Senate still must act on the annual foreign aid appropriation bill, which cleared the House last Thursday. The House cut $9 million dollars from the amount the President wanted. The Senate is expected to restore part of the House cuts and send the bill to a Senate-House conference where the difference in amounts will be compromised.

Also headed for a Senate-House conference is a bill authorizing the Atomic Energy Commission to proceed with its vast construction program. It is in a position to be compromised in a hurry.

Virtually everything else of a controversial nature already has been given the "hold until next year" tag.

Margaret's Birthday Near—Without Rumors

By EDDY GILMORE

LONDON (P)—Princess Margaret will be 27 Wednesday and, for the first time in 10 years, the annual Margaret marriage sweepstakes is without a favorite.

With every mid-August since she was 17, speculation has always climbed to a climax before the princess' birthday on Aug. 21.

Why no favorites, no hot tips, no surging dark horses this year?

Heart Belongs To Townsend?

Perhaps the heart of the pretty princess still belongs to the man for whom she publicly buried her love 22 months ago, Group Capt. Peter Townsend.

That's what some of her close friends say. And they add that, unless some new prince charming arrives on the scene, she may well go on her merry way as one of the most spectacular royal spinners in several centuries.

She is expected to spend her 27th birthday, as she has spent so many others, at old Balmoral Castle beside the River Dee in the highlands of Scotland.

With her will be her sister, Queen Elizabeth II, and other members of the royal family.

Same Old Question

Should any young man show up at the castle as a guest for birthday week, the old question—"Is he the boy?"—will inevitably arise.

But, it may be put with less force this year.

All the old beau of the past have either married, or withered in the cold winds of time and the persistent Townsend legend.

When she was 17, Margaret's name was coupled with that of Prince Michael of Romania.

At 18 it was Lord Blandford.

When she was 19, the hot favorite was Lord Ogilvy, who married an American, Virginia Fortune Ryan.

On her 20th birthday Lord Dal-

Princess Margaret

keith was tipped.

On her 21st it was Billy Wallace.

Mark Bonham Carter was more than mentioned the week before her 22nd birthday.

The week before she was 23, Lord Hambleton was being discussed.

Then came Colin Tennant when she was 24.

All except Wallace and Townsend have since married.

Even Gave Date

Townsend dominated the race to such a degree as she reached her 25th birthday in 1955 that one British newspaper even announced the place and the expected date of her expected marriage.

Last year, Billy Wallace, known in the Princess Margaret set as old faithful because of his constant court to the princess, got a few cautious nods.

Since then there have been at least a couple of mid-season nominees, Christopher Loyd and young Patrick Beresford, but they failed to stay the course even until birthday day.

Today, there is publicly nobody.

However, as one of her friends said:

"No matter how well some people know her, who really knows what's in her heart?"
